2. (a) To a portion of each solution, add dilute hydrochloric acid. The solution which gives a white precipitate is a solution of a lead salt.

(remains chloride in solution)

This can be confirmed by boiling the precipitate with water. The precipitate dissolves, lead chloride is insoluble in col water, but soluble in hot water,

The chlorides of copper, rine and iron are soluble in water. Hence no precipitate obtained when hydrochloric acid is added to their salt solutions.

(b) To the remaining solutions from (a) pass in hydrogen sulphide. The solution which gives a black precipitate is a solution of a copy

> 2H" + S" - CuS↓ hydrogen cupric (remine) sulphide in solution sulphide -

Cupric sulphide will precipitate in presence of hydrochloric acid, but the bull of iron and zino will not precipitate in the presence of hydrochloric acid.

This may be confirmed to be a copper by adding ammonia solution to a fresh port of the solution. A pale blue precipitate wil be formed at first, and the precipitate will dissolve in excess amounts to give a deep b solution.

(c) Take fresh portions of the remaining solution of iron and sine salts, and add ammonia solution to each. The solution which gives gelatinous green or brown precipitate, insoluble in excess amonia, is a solution of an iron salt.

The rine salt will also form a white precipitate which is soluble in excess to form a colourless solution.

(d) To the remaining solution from (s), pass in hydrogen sulphide. A white precipitate of sine sulphide will be obtained. 2n** + 2H + 5 - 2n3 - 2H Zine sulphide is insoluble in amonia solution.

In order to test for the furnish and ferric ion, add potassius ferricyanide to the solution of the iron salt. A ferrous salt will give a deep blue precipitate called "funduil's blus', while a ferric selt will give a trown

The tron ere and gots are fed in at the top through a bell hoppor, and a regulated quantity of limestone (about half the weight of the coke) is added at the same time. A blast of hot air is forced up the furnece from small pipes (called tuyeres) near the bottom.

The coke burns to carbon monoxide.

The purpose of the limestone is to convert the silies (SiO) impurity in the ore into a fusible slag (calcium silicate, CaSiO2). This floats on the surface of the molten iron at the bottom of the furnece.

[1. (a) Thrust and Pressure

Thrust is defined as a push force while pressure is the normal thrust acting on a unit area.

Thrust bears the unit of force :- dyne, gm.-wt., poundal, lb.wt., etc. The unite of pressure are: - dyne/sq.cm. gm.wt./sq.cm.; pdl/sq.in.. lb.wt./sq.in., etc.

- (b) The pressure in a liquid is measured by:p = hdg (dynes/sq.cm.)
  - =hd (gm.wt./sq.cm.) (1) Pressure on the top face - 20 gm.wt./sq.cm.
  - Pressure on the bottom face 70 gm.wt./sq.cm. (11) Thrust on the top face - ph - 20 x 20 gm.wt.

- 400 gm.wt. Thrust on the bottom • 70 x 20 - 1400 gm.wt>

(111) The thrust on the bottom exceeds that on the top of the object by (1400-400) gm.wt. That is, the upthrust of water on the object ls 1000 gm.wt.

Archimedes' principle When a body is wholly or partially immersed in a fluid it experiences an upthrust equal to the weight of the fluid displaced. The volume of water displaced = 20 x 50 c.c.

= 1000 c.c. . Weight of water displaced - 1000 gm. wt. This is exactly equals to the upthrust that is evaluated in (b).

(d) let m be the mass of copper attached in em.

Volume of copper - H a.c.

Volume of paraffin = 20 c.c. Glycerin displaced =  $(\frac{m}{8.9} \cdot \frac{20}{0.9})$  c.c.

Total weight of copper and paraffin = (m + 20) gm, wt, Upthrust of glycerine -  $(\frac{8}{8.9} \cdot \frac{20}{0.9})$  1.) gm, wt

By law of Flotation

$$m \cdot 20 = 1.3 \left( \frac{m}{8.9} \cdot \frac{20}{0.9} \right)$$

 $8.9 \times 0.9(m + 20) = 1.3(0.9m + 8.9 \times 20)$ 0.92(8.9 - 1.3) - 8.9 = 20.(1.3 - 0.9)

Ans, The mass of copper attached is 10.41 gr.

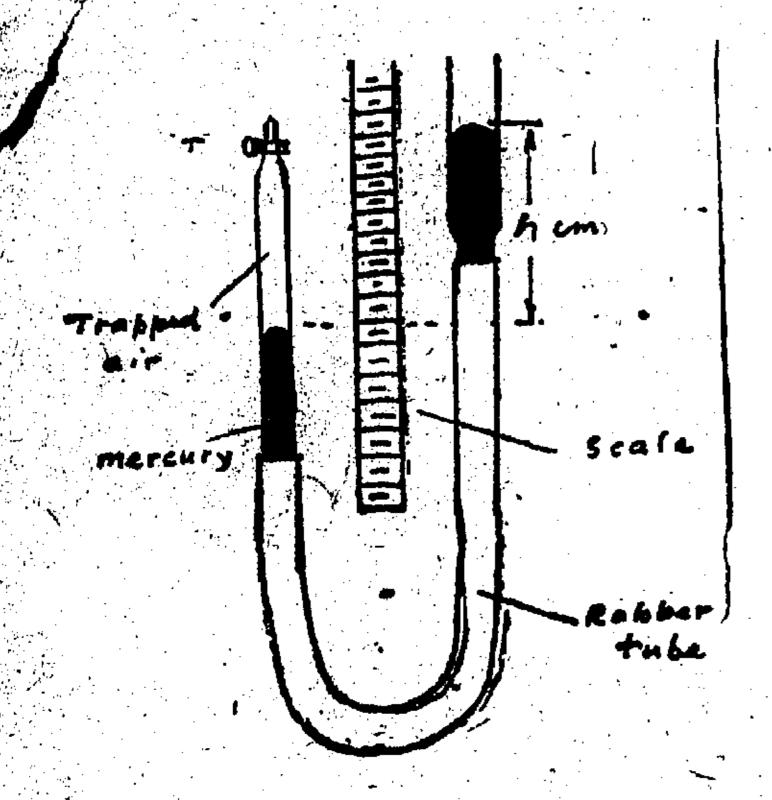

(a) (1) The moment of a force about a point is a turning effect caused by the force and is measured by the product of the force and the perpendigular distance of its line of action from the point.

(11) The centre of gravity of a body is defined as the point of application of the resultant force due to the earth's attraction on it. (b) (1) Boyle's Law

The volume of a fixed mass of gas is inversely proportional to the pressure. provided the temperature remains constant. (ii) To verify Boyle's Law mercury is poured in, trapping a mass of air in the burette.

A burette and a glass tube acting as . a marcury reservoir are connected by a stout. flexible rubber tubing. They are supported vertically by the side of a verticle scale and the reservoir tube can be moved upwards or downwrds.

A percenter reading is taken, H, on. The volume of the trapped air noted, and the difference between the heights, h ca, of the two sercury solution is measured. The reservoir is then moved to a fresh position and the new reedings are then. This is repeated for a number of positions. the product of pressure, (H . h) em, and volume at air trapped is approximately constant.

Medicine Securete result: The trepper eir should be dry, Water vapour is removed by the following process:-With tep I opened, the reservoir is raised until the burette is full of mercury. A calcium chloride drying tube is attached to the tap and the reservoir lowered until the burette is about half full of dry air.

(2), If the volume of air is eltered, the temperature will change. It is necessary we wait a short while after each adjustment in order to give the mir time to revert to room temperature, before readings are taken.

 $(\pi R^2 - \pi r^2)x = \pi_3 R^2 \times 3 - \pi r^2 \times 1$   $(3^2 - 1)x = 3^3 - 1$ Ans. The C.G. of the remaineding portion is i in. from the centre of the disc and on the other;

Weights are added to the pan until the. block is just on the point of slipping. When this takes place, the force of friction F gm.wt. has reached its maximum or limiting value and is equal to the total weight (R) of the pan plus the added weights.

The experiment is repeated for several times with weights added on the block, thus varying the normal reaction R.

The ratio of F to R is evaluated and is found to be approximately constant. W - F/R. The coefficient of static friction is determined.
